Below you will find more information on our use of cookies, on how we respect your privacy, and on the possibility of modifying your choice of cookies.

1. What is a cookie?

Cookies are small files which are stored on your computer, smartphone or tablet and which facilitate your internet browsing. There are different types of cookies which have different functions. Cookies can, for example: remember the language you use to browse, your session identifiers, certain browsing parameters, the pages you visit, certain information about the way you navigate, or even display the site correctly according to the way you navigate, etc.

2. What types of cookies do we use?

The cookies used can be classified according to their purpose, their lifespan and the entity to which they belong. We use cookies for various purposes, the same cookie can pursue several purposes:

- Necessary and functional cookies: they are essential for the proper functioning of our site. These cookies are, for example, required to control your identity when you log in, to remember your choice of cookies, to obtain better site performance, to keep your preference settings, etc.
- Analytical and marketing cookies: they collect information on how you use our website, which pages you visit, or can be used for statistical and performance purposes.

In terms of their lifespan:

- Temporary cookies are temporarily stored on your device. They are automatically deleted as soon as you close your browser.
- Persistent cookies remain on your device, even when you close the browser. They recognize you on subsequent visits, and remain on your device until they expire, until a new version of the cookie is installed or you delete them manually.

At the level of the entities to which they belong, cookies can have two types of origin:

- First party cookies are cookies installed and managed by Exquando. They are specific to the website visited.
- Third party cookies are cookies installed and managed by a third party. They are installed when you browse our website. Third-party cookies allow certain data to be sent to third parties when you browse our website. When we use this type of cookies, we make sure that these third parties cannot identify you on the basis of the data stored in these cookies.
